Todd,

I am so glad that I had you in one of my classes this year. You have always been so sweet to me. I you always tell me I'm beautiful, well I want you to know that really makes me feel good. You're one of the sweetest guys I know and I hope that we will always be close to each other. You are very, very sweet and very good looking, stay that way. Take care this summer and be sweet. I look forward to seeing you sometime this summer.

Love Ya!

Trace

Todd it's been great getting to know ^{again} this year last year was good but this year was excellent ~~to be continued~~. I just hope we both live thru the summer to make next year the best. We have had some good ones and some bad ones this year but next year is going to be nothing but good ones. Man we have become pretty damn good friends thru the past two years so let's keep it that way keep in touch 692-2669.

Love ya
Joy Colburn,

Todd,

It's been awfully fucking crazy in Chenobitches class. I have to hand it to ya you are one crazy mother. We'll have to get together this summer and Party Harty! Stay cool and Party Naked with Donelle!

Keep in

What's Up?

I swear, we've had some great times this year. It's really been a trip having you in two of my classes.

You've been one great friend, and a great listener when I've had problems.

Sometimes I don't know what I'd do if I didn't have you around to cheer me up.
Usually, I look forward to sixth period,
'cause you make the class "fun".

I hope we can always stay friends.

And sometime we'll have to go out, the 4 of ~~us~~ us, that is. I'm really glad you've found ~~your~~ ^{your} somebody. I am so happy for you and both. I ~~can~~ can see the happiness in both of your eyes. I tell ya what, we'll have a double wedding. What'cha think about that?

It sounds great to me! I know I'd be happy if I was marry Kip. (not saying I want).
No, really to be serious. I think me & Donnelle are the luckiest girls in Southeast. We've both got some great (the best) gump in Southeast! If that makes any sense. Ya know?
Well, before I go, I want to wish you and Donnelle all the luck in the world, and hope that ya'll go far in life.
And to remind you I want to be in the wedding.

If you remain the way you are now,
I know you'll go far in life, whether its with Donnelle or if its alone. You're the greatest! (besides Kip) Ha!

CLASSIC INSPIRATIONS

It was a hot August morning. Secluded halls, locked doors, and empty classrooms all transformed, as if on cue, as symbols of wisdom and influence filled the space, which had just seconds before been dark and desolate. Teachers and administrative personnel had returned a good two weeks before students had even begun, again, to think of books, homework, and lectures. Yet, another extremely hot August morning brought with it a new impulse. Symbols of insight and imagination, dressed in shorts and T-shirts, mingled through the now crowded halls, working their way through the excitement and into a classroom where the two symbols would meet face to face. Wisdom is now touched by imagination and insight is now carefully guided by influence. Unknowingly, these two symbols, working together throughout the school year, would arouse a characteristic of sharing and encouragement between two symbols that had once been considered totally different. However, through the 1984-85 school year, Falcons realized that these symbols were, indeed, unique, yet also very capable of helping and learning from each other. As the year progressed, it soon became clear that 1985 would be the year that teachers, administration, and students would leave an impression on each other like never before. This impression would long be cherished and remembered as Classic Inspirations.

It's as old as the bricks in the school building itself. We can see its effects, hear its accomplishments, and feel its binding strength. Classic Inspirations moved us further in 1985 than we ever dreamed possible. The effects it had on us were wide and meaningful. Its accomplishments were distinct and numerous. Its binding strength made us soar with the pride and dignity all Falcons should claim. It was the teachers who went out of their way to stay after school and re-explain the concepts which we had failed to understand the day before. It was the careful planning put into each lecture, with that touch of humor that made the 55 minutes of class seem much shorter. We saw it in the administration who, every now and then, bent the rules a little to help us get by. It was evident with our coaches who would yell and scream at us, striving for victory, yet sticking by us with support and caring after a defeat. It was the drama group, influenced to do the impossible, and perform four plays within two months. It was our band members and cheerleaders whose dedication seemed unending as they played and cheered with unbelievable impulse through the extreme heat, rain, and bitter cold. It was that student in English class who never could figure out symbolism, then one day, out of the blue, raised his hand and shouted, "Ah-ha, now I understand!" When disaster seemed to strike and we were ready to just give up, we saw it in our friends who were always there with a strong hand and words of encouragement that made us try again. These classic events made each of us stop and realize that all of those people, whom we too often take for granted, are the ones that guide and inspire us the most. Whether it was a teacher, a member of the administration, a student, or a friend, these influences left an impression on us like never before. This impression would long be cherished and remembered as Classic Inspirations.

A large group of friends attending Young Life make a toast to Classic Inspirations.

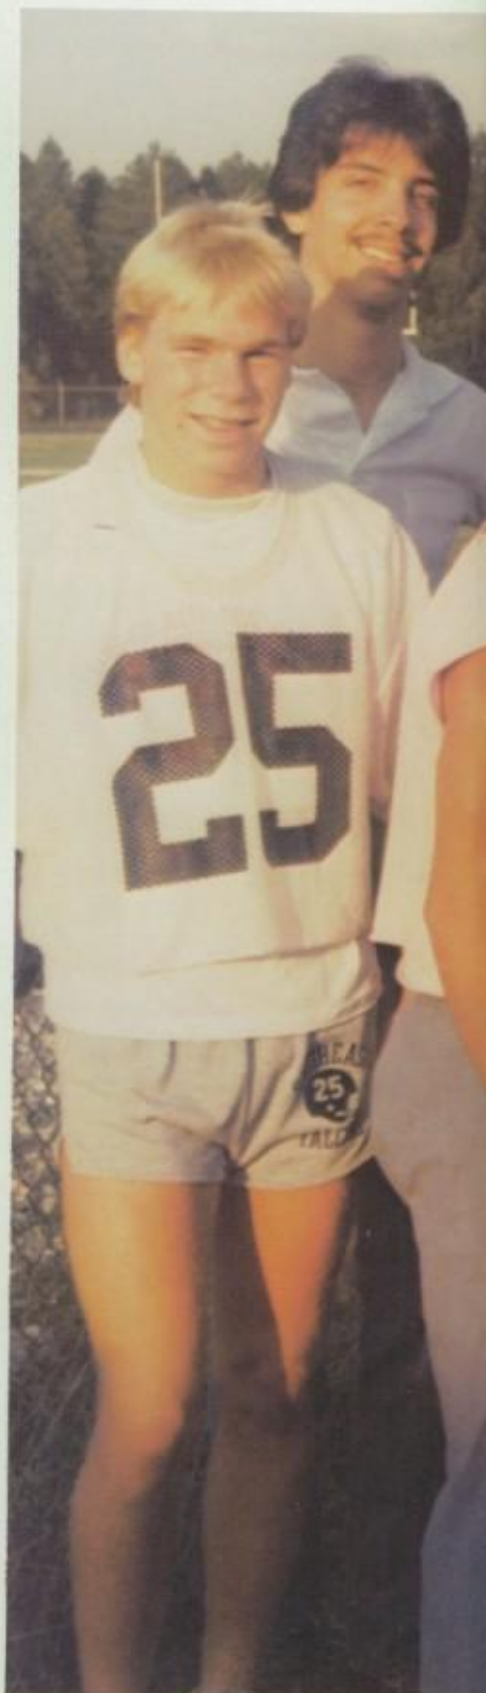

Something was always happening. No matter where you looked on the 55 acre campus, Falcons could be found taking advantage of numerous activities surrounding them. Whether studying for a test or partying away the high school blues — the life-lovers at Southeast proved no activity, event, or function was done half-heartedly. This all or nothing attitude was evident from the beginning of the year. Football games brought excitement and enthusiasm, starting the year off with a bang. Celebrating with pizza raids after the victories became the favorite Friday night pastime. Cooler weather brought top-notch performances in the form of students participating in the variety show and masqueteer plays. As the year continued, the Beauty Pageant crowned our new Miss Southeast and Prom '85 held memories to last forever. With these and other activities, students overcame the odds and tackled the daily grind of academic life. With a little hard work and inspiration, it all came together to make, what could have been just an ordinary year, one to be marked as something very special.

Donna Linney, along with the other band members put in many hours of hard work in preparation for the half-time show at Southeast football games.

New traditions

A change for the better

Along with the regular day to day changes that each school encounters, the 1984-85 school year at Southeast was met with several new "renovations" that seemed to change the set pattern the Falcons had long been accustomed to. Many of these changes appeared to silently sneak up on us, bringing forth a bit of fear, that possibly many of our long standing traditions would be quickly erased. These changes occurred in all aspects of the school including administration, faculty, academics, athletics, and policies governing the school.

In administration, Mr. Girardi became the new principal, taking control with his ideas and policies. Mrs. Suggs joined the administration as assistant principal coming to Southeast from Northwest Senior High. This year also saw eight new faces in the faculty. The additions were made in the English, foreign language, business, and vocational departments.

Beginning with the graduating class of '85, each student was required to earn twenty credits to graduate in comparison to the original eighteen. This was supplemented by a more lenient grading scale. The revising of these number grades was graciously accepted by the students. This year Falcons were expected to arrive at school by 8:20. Instead, however, of the usual five minutes in homeroom, students went directly to first period. This gave teachers more time in the classroom throughout the day.

During the 1984-85 school year, the athletic department saw several changes, also. For the first year, the field house was opened for use with all the equipment available to students. This addition was shared and appreciated by both the athletic teams and the gym classes. Another addition was the paving of the track. It gave a finished look to Southeast and also inspired runners to go that extra mile. Cheerleaders were divided into two squads this year. This provided a team for each season's sport and a chance for more girls to participate.

The biggest of changes, however, seemed to come in the form of school policies. A huge controversy between the senior class and the administration came at the beginning of the year as the announcement was made that the election of Senior Superlatives was dropped in favor of Outstanding Seniors. Another major policy change was the elimination of the announcements. Clubs and organizations could not use the intercom system, but had to rely on the bulletin board to relay their messages. This benefited the teachers for more classroom time, but left many students wondering what was happening with school activities.

Taking advantage of the new varieties in the cafeteria, Terry Day chooses between the grape and fruit punch.

Trying out the facilities in the new athletic field house, Leigh Ann Davenport enjoys "pumping iron" during her sixth period gym class.

Air bands rock S.E.

Students jam on stage

Excitement was in the air. Crowds walking through the front door on their way to the auditorium heard shouts and screams from dedicated rock fans anxiously awaiting the start of a historic event in Falcon country. 8:00 p.m. on October 13 marked the first annual Air Band contest. Normal, everyday students transformed into punked out rockers portraying their favorite group.

Auditions were held on October 7 and judges selected eight band to perform. Air bands participating in this contest chose a song and lip synched the words as the song was played on tape. Everyone wanted a chance to participate, jamming away in competition for the title of Southeast's number one rocker.

The first group performing was Run DMC with Kevin Finger, Brian Knox, and Kelly Striblin. The next group up was the Go-Go's with Kelly Daniels, Joy Patton, Debbie Pike, Wendy Royal, and Angie Staley. Singing "Rebel Yell" were Chris Morgan, Mike Fields, Jennifer Grimes, Kevin Knight, and Skyler McCurley performing Billy Idol. Van Halen consisted of Dale Wyrick, Todd Wade, David Lowdermilk, and Mike McAfee. The bearded men from Texas, "ZZ Top," were Brian Howell, Steve Gibson, and John Tidwell. Following, Glenn Bentley, Scott Brantley, Jennifer Cochran, Lisa Cummings, Greg Oakes, Celia Renold, Tammy Roper, and Rodney Toper portrayed The Mary Jane Girls. Darryll Artis, Thomas Craven, Chris

Hunt, Derrick Maness, Larry Owens, and Jeff Robinson played for the group The Time. Performing Deep Purple were Scott Bennett, Tom Dondlinger, Andrew Greeson, and Eddie Johnson.

As the judges made their final decision, Van Halen and The Time stepped forward as co-winners of the first annual contest. Each member of these groups received a cassette tape for their outstanding performance.

Now it's my turn

Weekends: time to be me

All across campus, sixth period classes buzzed. For many, the 2:50 bell on Friday was music to our ears. It signaled the end of a week everyone had somehow survived. Books were forced into lockers just as shouts of weekend plans could be heard echoing throughout the halls. After slamming that last locker door, the weekend had officially begun.

Many headed home to raid the refrigerator or watch their favorite soap, while others got a head start preparing for that 7:30 date. If the Falcon team had a game, the stands usually filled up as quickly as Pizza Hut did after the game. Following a pizza feast, the victory celebration and excitement continued on into the night.

Saturday morning or early afternoon, as it may have been for those late sleepers, brought with it a rude awakening as memories of the night before lingered on. Although for most, Saturday afternoons were spent taking it easy, for some it was a time for earning extra money. At the end of a hard day's work, there came another night of "living." Falcons could be found cruising High Point Road, Main Street in Burlington, or just walking through the malls hoping to find a familiar face in which to share the day's events.

Though many people are out with groups of friends, some share their weekend with that special someone. The "dating game" is still the most popular game at Southeast. That first glance as she's walking down the hall or that shy giggle to a friend as he passes by is the beginning of a slow and gradual process. There's the learning of schedules for the "accidental" meeting and the asking of phone numbers in order to get help on homework he just couldn't understand. After the ice is broken, the question she's been waiting for is finally voiced, "What are you doing Friday night?" Going to dinner, taking in a movie or just staying home to watch TV are the things that weekends are made of.

But all good things must come to an end and Sunday night came sooner than expected. Devoted students placed cramming for Monday-morning tests and homework above all other priorities.

Waking abruptly to a 7 a.m. alarm signaled the end to the two days of fun and relaxation. Monday started a whole new week with the same old purpose . . . counting the days until Friday.

After enjoying the game and pizza, Brian Souther and pals Pam, Audra, Kim, and Penny brave the perils of crossing High Point Road to play on the slide at Burger King.

Waiting for the Southern Alamance caravan to begin, Chuck Straughn and Scott Blackmon are looking forward to the season's first football game.

Weekends aren't just fun and games. Jane Edwards and Scott Akers show the other side of weekend life by working at Winn-Dixie.

Stepping forward

Student Council leads the way

What do the adjectives hardworking, dedicated, and responsible remind you of? Student Council, of course! For many years, the Student Council has been the striving force at Southeast, promoting functions, helping the needy, and voicing student opinion. The 1984-85 school year proved to be no different as the council, led by Tom Hosse, leaped forward to accomplish all of the traditional goals expected of them.

Before the school year had begun, members of the council were already at work preparing for the upcoming year. In an attempt to make the school more presentable for students arriving for their first week back, council members took time out of their summer vacation to trim bushes and pick up trash around the campus. Another service project included the cleaning of the Falcon sign on the corner of Liberty and Woody Mill Roads. Student Council members also played a helpful role as guides during the PTA open house.

Adding to the normal excitement and festivities of the first few days of school, the Student Government hosted a bring your own tapes party. The council stepped forward again, attempting to arouse school spirit, as they sponsored events such as the first annual Air Band Contest and Hush Button Day. As Homecoming came around the corner, council members seemed to be the busiest ever. Time was spent providing "a touch of class" into Homecoming court elections, activities, and the long awaited Homecoming dance.

Although the Student Council planned entertainment within the school, a large portion of their time was spent within the community. One service project was the meals on wheels. Members of the council took time to deliver meals to the elderly in Pleasant Garden. Senior Citizen Day also gave the elderly a chance to come to our school and share a day with the students.

To round out the year, selling candy cane messages, delivering carnations, and the annual Miss Southeast Beauty Pageant constantly kept the Student Council on the move. It was clearly evident that the Student Council was the striving force at Southeast. Their main goal was to make Southeast the best it could possibly be, earning yet, another success.

Taking time out of study hall, Stacy Bellairs, Kevin Knight, and Ann Kunkel prepare for Hush Button Day.

In preparation for the Air Band Contest, the publicity committee makes posters to boost student enthusiasm.

One distinct duty of the student council is performing service projects for the school. Dedicated council members spend a hot summer afternoon trimming bushes and picking up trash in an attempt to beautify the campus.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEMBERS: Laura Aydelette, Kim Barnwell, Margaret Bass, Laurie Beasley, Neal Boswell, Kelley Boyles, Michelle Brown, Missy Chandler, Scott Cloer, Lisa Cummings, Jeff Doss, Lori Fields, Tay Filer, Jennifer Grimes, Dawn Handy, Don Harte, Lisa Horney, Tom Hosse, Clay Howard, Barry Hurewitz, Joel Hurewitz, Glenda Jobe, Stephen Jobe, Patricia Jordan, Kevin Knight, Kristal Knight, Ann Kunkel, Lydia LaBella, Kari Lemke, Mark Lemons, Chris Lewis, Jim Lewis, David Lowdermilk, Betsy Meade, Keith Meinelt, Brant Mills, Valerie Pierson, Julie Potter, Beth Thaggard, Meredith Umberger, Ingrid Weeks, Sam White, Carol Whittermore, Kristie Wilke, Kerrie Wilkins.

Although no black tie affair, President Tom Hosse presides over a regular student council meeting.

A step into paradise

prom creates memories

All across Falcon Country teenagers woke early on Saturday morning, May 12, 1984. By-passing Scooby-Doo and skipping breakfast, excited students rushed to get a head start on preparing for the memorable night to come.

Just the thought of Prom night seemed to set everyone into a scurry. While guys rushed off to pick up their matching tuxedos and stop by the florist for that perfect corsage, gals took advantage of the gorgeous early afternoon catching a few last-minute rays. However, by the time the clock struck three, panic had hit. The car still had to be washed, the lady at the beauty shop had gotten sick, the bow tie was missing, or there was a run in the last pair of hose. By six-thirty everything had worked itself out and the handsome young prince pulled up the driveway in his shiny white car ready to escort his beautiful princess for the evening to the ball.

Preparation for the event actually started long before May twelfth, however. Members of the Junior class led by their class officers and advisor, Mr. Johnson, had begun making plans months before. The officers attended a Battle of the Bands contest in Charlotte, North Carolina and selected "The Entertainers" as the band for Prom '84. After the band had been chosen, the decision was made to hold the Prom at the Holiday Inn Four Seasons as opposed to the Village Green. A brain-storming session was then held a few weeks later and the theme "Almost Paradise" was selected. As the sun slowly set and a romantic full moon filled the sky, the night was set for tons of pictures, the perfect dinner, and a memorable step into "paradise."

Spirit at fever pitch

Homecoming week promotes excitement

The week of October 29 brought a temporary break of monotony from regular school routine. It was time for Falcons to set their sights on bigger and better things . . . Homecoming. For that one night of festivities there were many days of preparation beforehand. The Cheerleaders, Boosterettes, Student Council and other various committees spent many hours during and after school getting ready for the days ahead. Banners were made to recognize the senior members of the football team while posters were put up to remind students of the Homecoming dance.

Court elections added to the excitement early in the week. One girl and one alternate were elected during homeroom Tuesday and added to a ballot each class voted on the following day. One guy was also voted on in each homeroom to act as an escort for the female contestants. Daily spirit raisers such as top 'em day, stomp 'em day, jersey day, lick 'em day, and orange and black day were promoted to also boost enthusiasm.

As Friday arrived, Falcon spirit was at a peak. The upcoming pep rally took top priority as students tried to make it through the shortened day. The ringing of the bell signaled the end of the academics and the beginning of the activities. Shouts were heard throughout the halls as students made their way to the football stadium. The hustle and bustle of trying to find friends and a seat up front only added to the building excitement.

With the traditional beginning, the Homecoming court was presented along with the elected candidates for Homecoming King. The senior football players and their accompanying representatives were then recognized. After clearing the field, spirit was at fever pitch as excited, and perhaps nervous students, began listening for their names over the loudspeaker to signal the beginning of their event. Among the events were the grab bag, the egg toss, the chug-a-lug, the baby race, and the wheelbarrow race. There was strong competition throughout the activities, but keeping with tradition, the seniors dominated the events. The juniors took second place with the sophomores bringing up the rear.

At the conclusion of the events, students were dismissed to go home and prepare for the night ahead. Though class competition was evident during the pep rally, there was a sense of pride as Falcons united as one to cheer our team to victory . . .

Getting egg on her face was one of the consequences Betsy Meade had to suffer during the egg toss.

Thomas Craven and Patrick Kent combine coordination and luck attempting to survive the wheelbarrow race.

Displaying their spirit on top 'em day, Kevin Finger, Tim Comer, Annie Kunkel, and Shelly Parsons don their favorite hats.

Showing off his many talents, Senior Matt Pencola, with the help of Wendy Royal, chugs Coke from a baby bottle.

Competing against juniors and seniors, Tamra Rummage nervously tears into a box of Milk Duds.

Despite rumors that Alan Coble "trains his women well," Sharon Ross seems quite sloppy as she attempts to shove applesauce in his mouth.

A touch of class

Homecoming '84 rolls out the red carpet

The excitement didn't end with the conclusion of the pep rally, however, as students took advantage of a beautiful fall afternoon and let their Falcon spirit soar. In the five short hours between the end of the pep rally and the start of the game, the news was quickly spread from here to Western that the bird was the word.

For ten striking young ladies however, the partying did have to wait at least a little while. These girls, representing the 1984 Homecoming court, had a lot to do in what seemed to be a very short period of time. "It was like getting ready for the Prom," stated senior Laurie Beasley. This was to be one of the most important nights of the year and everything had to be perfect. Every hair in place, make-up just right, and a gorgeous dress were the typical characteristics of each hopeful candidate. Laurie Beasley, Kristy Ellis, Julie Poole, and Carol Whittemore were voted as senior candidates for the Homecoming Queen. Candidates for the Maid of Honor included Angel Cockerham, Krystal Knight, and Tina Toomes while Kim Barnwell, Michelle Brown, and Patricia Jordan represented the sophomore class.

Ten young men also played a very important role in Homecoming '84. For the first time in Southeast's history, guys were chosen by the student body, instead of by each girl, to escort the Homecoming candidates. This procedure wasn't new to the senior class, however, who carried over their tradition of selecting Homecoming King candidates. Kenny Gray, Scott Jones, Kevin Knight, and Kevin Lambe were selected by their senior classmates as candidates for the Falcon throne. Mike Douglas, Jim Lewis, and Todd Wade escorted the junior candidates while Eric Burton, Rick Francis, and Kevin Williams represented the sophomore contestants.

As the final seconds before half time counted down, these twenty participants paraded down from these stands to find their place in line behind the senior representatives. Anticipation, nervousness, excitement and, of course, the forty-two degree chill resulted in a lot of shivering as the memorable event began. The Falcon football stadium was majestically transformed from a muddy battlefield into a New York street scene featuring Saks Fifth Avenue. With a special "touch of class," Student Council members dressed in black tails and tights, rushed onto the field with the cardboard street scene and tall green plants.

As the crowd cheered on, each young lady and her escort stepped out of Saks, down the red carpet, and found their position in line. A long stretch of silence seemed to follow before the announcer's voice broke in. Suddenly hearing her name, Tina Toomes stepped out to be recognized as Maid-of-Honor. The future Queen's golden moment grew closer as Kenny Gray came forward with a huge grin on his face accepting the title of Homecoming King. The drum roll began and a sparkling excitement gleamed in each of the senior candidate's eyes. Carol Whittemore's name was announced, and the sparkle in her eyes turned to joyous tears as she stepped forward to stand with Kenny and be crowned Homecoming Queen for 1984. "The whole night was wonderful," stated Carol, "but it was all the hugs and congratulations afterwards that made it all the greatest."

Junior, Tina Toomes, steps forward to be recognized as the 1984 Maid-of-Honor.

SENIOR FOOTBALL PLAYERS AND REPRESENTATIVES: Trevor McAdoo — Catrena Jordan, Allen Lee — Meredith Umberger, Paul LaMachio — Jill Boyce, Ken Hopkins — Sharon Humble.

All the excitement seems to have overcome Eric Burton and sophomore Kim Barnwell.

Rock around the clock

Valerie Pierson crowned Miss Southeast

On the night of February 16, sixteen contestants competed for the title of Miss Southeast in the annual Miss Southeast Pageant. The girls, consisting of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, represented various school clubs. Each club elected two girls to participate in the pageant and auditions were held on January 23 to finalize the contestants.

After a lot of debating,

"Rock Around the Clock" was chosen as the theme for this year's pageant. The girls presented an opening dance to the popular 50's hit, which was choreographed by Christa Kirby and Valerie Pierson.

Representing the Civinettes was Lisa Cummings, escorted by Tim Austin. FBLA elected Stefanie Stuart, escorted by Donnie Watts and Rhonda Stout, escorted by Alan Branson.

Elected by FTA was Michelle Brown, escorted by Spence Saunders and Kim Barnwell, escorted by Chris Walrond. Representing the French club was Margaret Bass, escorted by Paul LaMachio and Laurie Beasley escorted by Jeff Doss. The Monogram club elected Christa Kirby, escorted by Allen Lee and the representative from YAD was Audra Chambers, escorted by Brian Allman. The Jaycettes chose Betsy

Meade, escorted by Jim Lewis as their representative, and Sheila Johnson, escorted by Brian Welker, was chosen to represent the Art Club. Elected by Masque-teers was Amiee Lavore, escorted by Chris Morgan and representing Tiercel was Delita Reid, escorted by Farrell Vernon. Mike Heim escorted Valerie Pierson, who represented NHS and Kenny Gray escorted Angel Cockerham who was elected by YCA. To round out the sixteen contestants, Patricia Jordan, escorted by Greg Schall, represented the Pep club.

The competition actually went beyond the program itself as the girls met two hours before the pageant was to begin and had dinner with the judges and school administrators. At 8:00 p.m. however, the auditorium was transformed back in time to early 1950 as the judges continued in making their tough decisions.

The contestants were judged on talent and evening gown. The judges, who were former Southeast students, included Diane B. Foxworth, a Greensboro opera singer, Sharon M. Phelps, a music director and pianist, and Dell T. Whitesell, a commercial artist and Greensboro Jr. Miss of 1978.

After the talent and evening gown competitions, Amiee Lavore, Delita Reid, Valerie Pierson, Margaret Bass, and Laurie Beasley were chosen as the five semi-finalists. Excitement was at a peak as they then presented themselves before Student Council President Tom Hosse and were asked questions relating to goals, politics, and feelings about Southeast. The girls were then given a break as the judges made their final decisions. During this time the Ensemble provided top entertainment, performing several new musical num-

As the judges returned with their decisions, the first sealed envelope revealed Amiee Lavore as the winner of the talent award for her outstanding comical monologue. It was then time for Miss Southeast 1984, Kim Cockerham, to take her final walk. As an anxious audience awaited, Tom Hosse called Delita Reid to step forward as second runner-up and Amiee Lavore as first runner up. With only three beautiful young ladies left, the final envelope was torn open and contestant No. 12, Miss Valerie Pierson, was crowned Miss Southeast 1985.

Boredom breakers

students welcome interruptions in routines

Day by day, the same 'ole teachers, classes, rules, tests, and of course, homework proved to be deathly boring. During the 180 days of school, both students and faculty members craved for something to break the monotony.

Excitement hit the air when rumors of an afternoon pep rally or a morning assembly were discussed between classes. Just the possibility of missing chemistry in order to watch cheerleaders or skipping calculus to attend a choral assembly was enough to drive students crazy.

Although quite rare, field trips were probably the most excellent way to get out of school work while having a great time. These journeys away from school often kept students far from their "center of learning" for the entire day. Whether it was a bus ride to the coliseum for Career Day, a trip to a French bakery, an exciting data processing tour of Ciba-Geigy, or just a chance for Ensemble members to perform for the elderly, it meant learning new and exciting things outside of the brick walls which enclosed us in Falcon Country.

If nothing else, students could always hang on to the reality that each Friday would bring with it club meetings or reading days. These two favorite boredom breakers gave students an extra half hour to "take care of business" and graciously cut first, second, and third period short.

Lunch and afternoon break were there for us every day, and we couldn't have made it without them. Our thirty minute lunch period brought some a chance for a quick, slick trip to Li'l General while other brave souls stuck it out at school.

After fifth period, afternoon break gave us two minutes to go to our locker, three minutes to talk, a minute and a half to grab a Coke, and thirty seconds to run to class.

Each of these breaks in the regular humdrum activities made school life a little easier. But all good things must come to an end, and the days went on along with the teachers, classes, rules, tests, and homework, yes — the days went on . . . and on . . . and on . . .

The daily lunch period provides an excellent opportunity for Lisa Beck and Darren Wilson to just spend time together.

Afternoon break gives students a chance to relax and chat before tackling their last class.

Mr. Rose perhaps doesn't realize the extent of the "surprise" Jennifer Grimes has in store for him.

Though often taken for granted, the daily lunch period gives students a well deserved interruption from their courses of study. Kevin Lambe, Kenny Gray, and Sam White have a plain 'ole good time during the thirty minute break.

Cindy Richmond and Anna Pearman put all thoughts of schoolwork aside as they enjoy a sunny afternoon pep rally.

Daniel Gruer takes time out to look at the geometry projects in Mr. Driscoll's room.

The first thought that comes to mind when one hears the word "academics" is hard work. This is the part of school which everyone tries to forget, but shouldn't. Academics is not only books, homework, and tests; but plays, field trips, and many of the electives that Southeast has to offer.

The teachers and the students work together. They learn from each other. Many of the students had to discover that learning is a give and take process. Through various activities, the goal of learning was achieved with the help of teachers, the administration, and most of all, the students themselves.

All the hard work pays off in the end when one walks across the stage to receive their diploma. When walking in front of those thousands of people — one feels a distinct pride never experienced before.

"The Long Home." The skit performed by Christa Kirby, Glenda Jobe, Delitt Reid, Allison Osborne, and Laurie Beasley, won them honorable mention at the North Carolina Theater Competition.

Cultural Arts

A Varied Menu

A dash of creativity, a sprinkle of ambition, and a dab of talent were the vital ingredients for various students with a wide range of interests in drama, art, and music. They selected courses in these fields and strived throughout the year to have some fun while enhancing their talents.

Drama I taught students the basic techniques of acting, directing, and improvisation. Drama II gave more advanced actors a chance to perform before audiences and direct their own plays. The Drama Production class emphasized the technical aspects of the theater. Four different levels of art classes were taught by Mrs. Hill. This gave students a chance to acquire a basic understanding and appreciation for art. The new crafts course was very popular this year. Keeping with the tradition of excellence, Mrs.

Thompson's "singing falcons," and Mr. Spark's "pride of southeast" kept busy throughout the year. There was always a melody in the air backed by a lot of hard work.

Lee LeHanka enjoys his role as he acts out the part of the Miller in The Canterbury Tales.

English

AN EVERYDAY REQUIREMENT

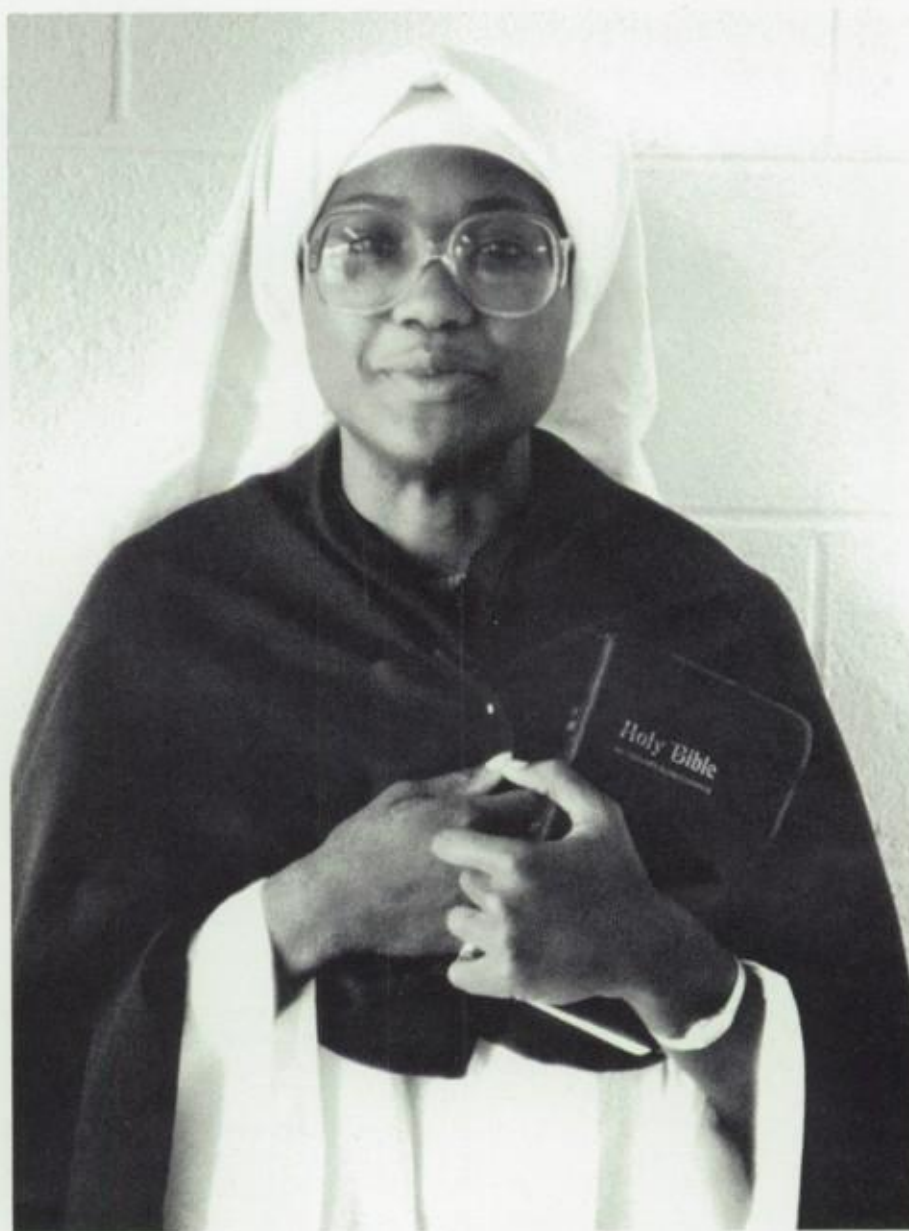

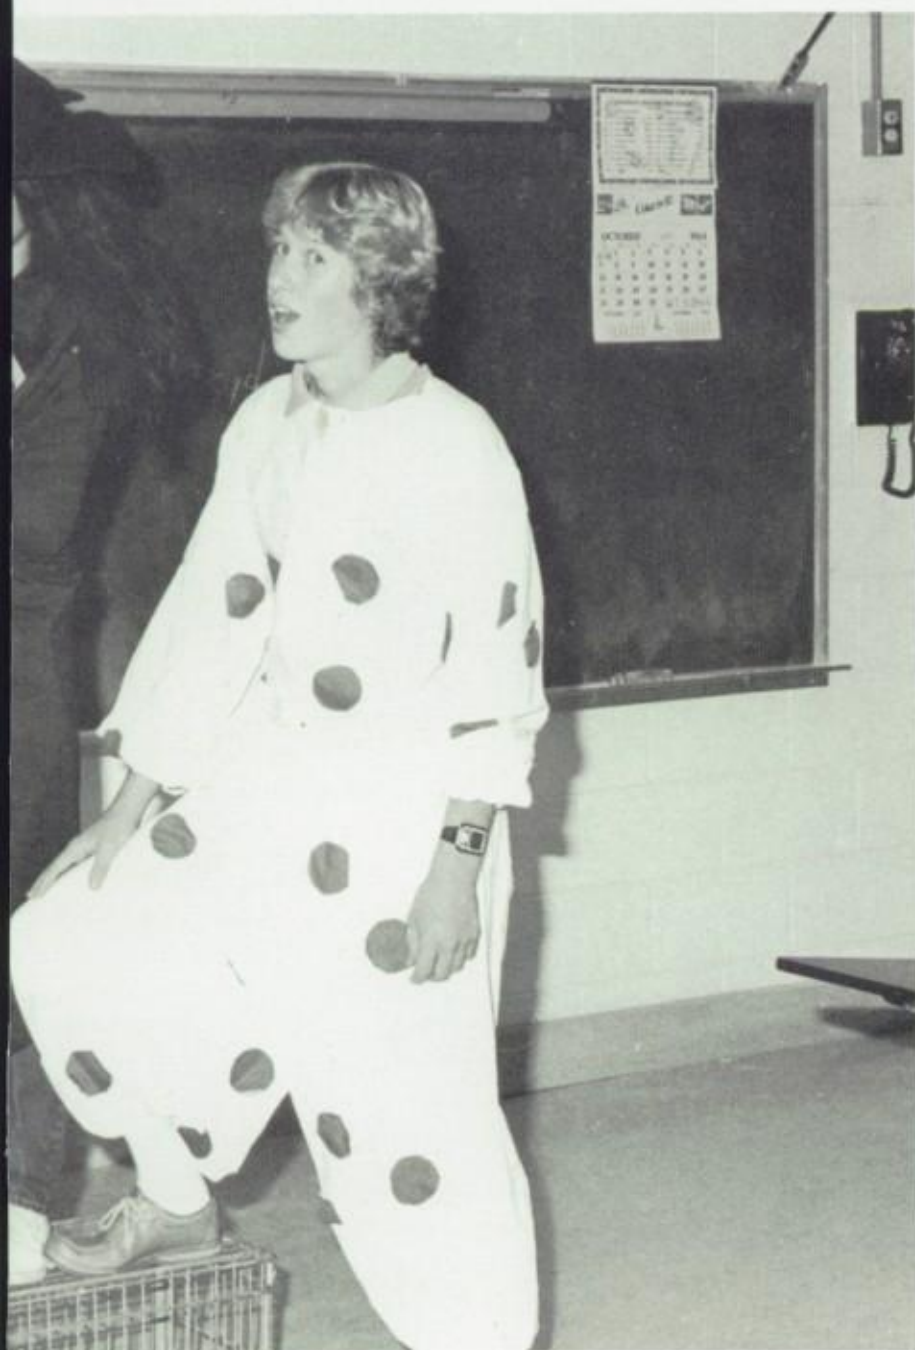

In the English department at Southeast, teachers have constantly strived to take the monotony and dullness out of this daily required subject and replace it with creativity and perhaps even a little fun. Literature was introduced to students in each grade level, in the form of poetry, novels, drama, and non-fiction books. Several English classes re-enacted Chaucer's The Canterbury Tales and scenes from The Scarlet Letter. The students dressed in costumes and presented their versions of the stories to their classmates.

As the time for the research paper came around the corner, things began to turn a little sour. No matter how hard the students tried to get out of it, each of them were stuck with the last minute note-taking and late night typing.

When the year came closer to the end, the students were able to look back on all of the literary notes, gramatic diagrams, and poetic verses. They realized that English was only a tough course for those who made it that way.

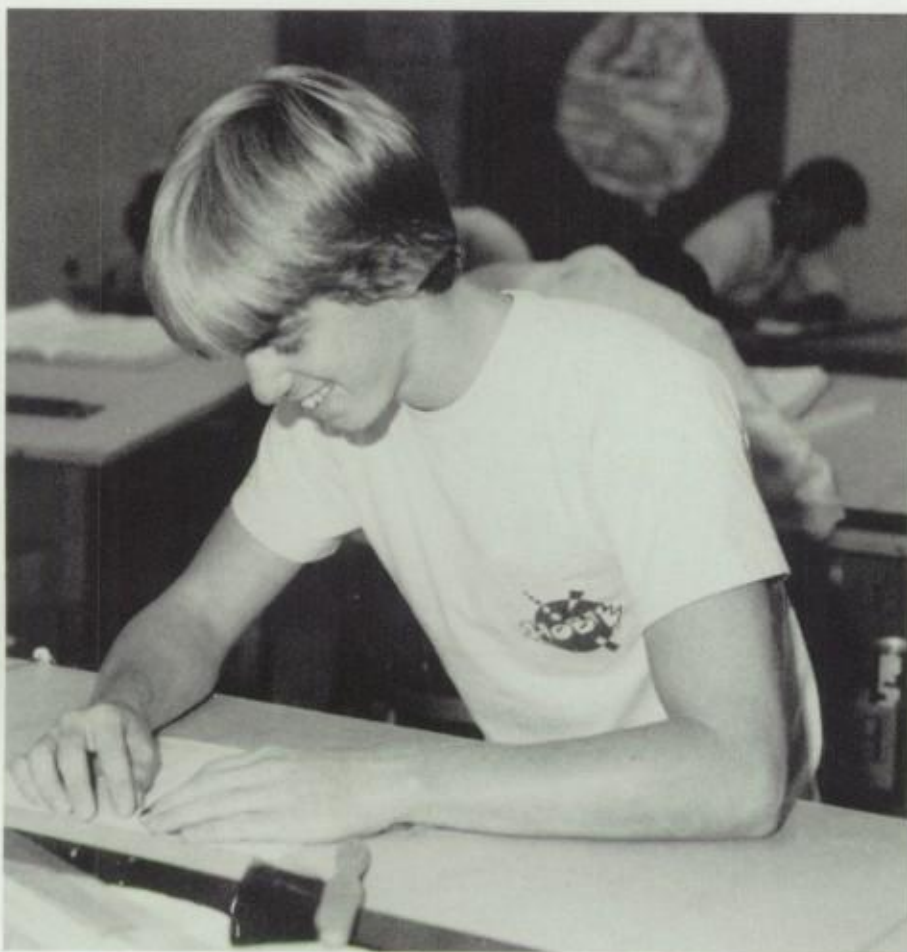

Lori Fields, Tracy Janas, Barry Hurewitz, and Cliff Bailey act out a scene from The Scarlet Letter.

Tracy Biggs spends his time repairing a lawn mower engine while in auto body mechanics.

Vocations

Ready or Not . . .

The words "We're looking for someone with experience" often hit high school students after entering the job market. When they graduate, they usually don't have the experience for doing anything but homework. Since the job market needs young workers with experience, vocational students often have an edge because they not only have done homework, but real work, too.

The vocational courses offered at Southeast such as carpentry, drafting, agriculture, electronics, occupational co-op, distributive education, and auto body mechanics provide basic knowledge and skills needed to help students decide what kind of work they would like to do. Whether they were building, drawing, planting trees, wiring radios, or fixing a carburetor, the classrooms consisted of more than just four walls and desks lined in a row.

Vocational students didn't have to limit their job search to signs that read "Help Wanted: No experience necessary." They're ready to move to bigger and better things.

History & Math

Facts and Figures

"To graduate, you need two units of history!" was a familiar phrase you heard a hundred times. Unless you planned on digging around in the middle of a desert for artifacts of an ancient civilization, you wondered why you needed to study history. You thought it was past, but after a few weeks of lecturing and reading, you realized it was more than just a collection of facts. When studied seriously, history came alive, showing you interesting events that had actually happened to people before you, and it taught you about what trends to look for in the future.

Along with two units of history, you also need two units of math. Whether it was 2×2 or why $\pi = 3.14$, the math department had something for everyone. Every level of interest and talent was covered. Enjoyment of math was stressed because it is used so much in daily life. The math curriculum is continually being updated for future math-whizzes of Southeast.

Both courses were required and each benefited us on our way to college.

Mr. Bare takes a break from his never-ending search for the answer to the question, "Why?"

Science

Blinded by Science

Science at Southeast offers several courses which are all beneficial to the students. There is the required Biology, Adv. Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and the labs that go with them.

Sometimes it just wasn't safe in class. Sometimes careless students, not following teacher's instructions, would put chemicals together where they didn't belong, causing unsettling explosions. This would result in clogged sinks and odors escaping into the hallways that smelled deadly.

Biology students were continually faced with the uninviting odors of soon-to-be dissected frogs, worms, and cats. All of these were a part of the many trials and tribulations of the science department.

Teaching these courses definitely had its ups and downs, but the teachers took it in stride. Their main objective was to give the students an understanding of science and its effects on them and their society. After completing a science course, one would be equipped with knowledge helpful to them for the rest of their life.

Foreign Language

DIALECTS AND DIALOGUES

As students took their seat for yet another hour, it seemed as though it was just another course full of tests and homework. But, as many students soon realized, it was a favorite class. Whether it was French, Spanish, or Latin the courses had a different level of interest.

Rising Juniors and Seniors felt this as they began to prepare for college because a foreign language was needed. The classes prepared students for this, but during the year it was filled with culture. In various classes teachers showed customs by providing articles, pictures, and literature, from the countries. Other classes visited restaurants with foreign cuisines and tried food of other countries. This kind of participation gave the courses a varied learning process while it instilled the basics of the language.

All of these classes provided the requirements we needed and let us experience other cultures too, while we took a course other than the "3 R's."

BUSINESS

TAKING CARE OF BUSINESS

To a stranger, a walk down the back hall at Southeast may seem like a step into a large corporate office, as sounds of typewriters, computer print-outs, and adding machines fill the air. Seventeen business related courses were taught this year to prepare students for an easier entrance into the business world.

Typing has always been a very popular course for the practical business student. Each one was taught the basic operations of typing by using the touch method. The Accounting classes gave students with a specific interest in a future Accounting field an excellent opportunity to obtain valuable training. With computers becoming more a part of everyday life, Data Processing provided students with actual "hands-on" experience with micro and on-line terminals.

There is more that can be added to this long list of business classes, that will range from Record-keeping to Shorthand to Business Math, which gave students the opportunity to get a wide range of training, needed in order to take care of business.

In Office Occupations Sandra Huton, LeAnn Murray, Karen Britt, and Ronda Sutphin sort practice sets.

Physical Education

It's Cheaper than a Spa

Probably everyone's favorite subject, next to study hall, of course, was P.E. A period of one credited course with no books, homework, or tests was bound to be the best possible class ever invented.

All sophomores were required to take General P.E.

II. This course was simply an extension of 9th grade P.E. I and offered the underclassmen a wide variety of activities. Juniors and Seniors wishing to continue with their athletic curriculum were offered Advanced P.E. This class placed more emphasis on individual sports.

Advanced Physical Fitness was also taught to Junior and Senior athletes who wanted to stay in shape for school sports. This course offered the student the opportunity to concentrate on developing an optimum level of individual fitness. General calisthenics, running, and weight lifting were included.

Whether it was shooting the hoop, playing volleyball, or lifting weights, Falcons were always happier in the surroundings of the gym; far, far away from the books.

Acting as if nothing matters, Coaches Clontz, Callahan, and Wagstaff observe their P.E. classes.

Exclusive Editions

Southeast has always had the reputation for producing excellent journalists. The 1984-85 school year was no exception as the school newspaper (Peregrine) and yearbook (Talon) staffs pushed forward to record those special moments which touched both students and faculty members. The Talon, which is an annual edition of Southeast's memories and activities was started early as staff members and advisor, Ray Driscoll, attended several spring and summer workshops learning basic yearbook techniques. The first major task was making the decision of the theme and selecting a design and color for the cover. As the first deadline approached, members soon learned how devoted they must be as they gave up great amounts of time drawing lay-outs, and writing captions and copy. Hardwork, dedication, and deadlines were things that the Peregrine staff were also familiar with. Each month fourteen students and one advisor had the responsibility of publishing the Peregrine. Without fail, they continued to produce a paper that was newsworthy, interesting and fun to read. The newspaper covered editorials, sporting events, and featured special items that ranged from school functions to extra curricular activities. Both the Peregrine and Talon publications are vital to Southeast in that they make school life not just a "day to day" grind, but add a note of anticipation.

The Pride of Southeast

The Falcon Marching Band, along with the Specialty Corps, which consists of the Majorettes, Flag Girls, and the Feature Twirler, have earned the title of being the "Pride of Southeast." This distinguishing title did not just develop over the years. It came through hard work and dedication from each of its members.

School started on August 27 for most students. But for the "Pride of Southeast," school started on August 13, in the form of Band Camp. Band Camp was a long week of practice for the band members. Even though it may have been frustrating to some of them, it showed that they had the initiative to be better, making themselves and the school as a whole, even prouder of what they have accomplished.

sausages. Along with this, they raffled off a new Chevrolet pick-up truck. These were fund-raising projects, in order to raise money for their annual band tour.

On Friday nights you could hear the sounds of the Falcon Marching Band all over campus, as they performed at half-time at every home game. Not only did they play at the football games, the band participated in other school activities. They made preparations for the Pleasant Garden Christmas Parade. In conjunction with this, they rehearsed for their annual Christmas and Spring concerts. The Specialty Corps kept reaching toward perfection. They practiced continuously on their routines for the Christmas Parade and for their upcoming competitions.

Throughout the year these well-rehearsed performers achieved many goals. Led by band director, Brad Sparks and Specialty Corps sponsor, Judy Thompson, they proved that practice, determination, and salesmanship really paid off. After all, the Falcon Marching Band and the Specialty Corps are the "Pride of Southeast."

Jazz Band

Sparkles

Auditions were held last spring for places on the 1984-85 Southeast Jazz Band. Many of the students on this year's Jazz Band are Seniors; however, a few Juniors and Sophomores are also members. The members of the band spent many hard hours practicing to perfect their smooth delivery of songs during performances.

The practice paid off as the Jazz Band performed at Nathaniel Greene Elementary School and Moriah Church to appreciative audiences. One of the highlights of the year was when the band performed their repertoire at the Guilford County Schools' future program and received a standing ovation.

This year's Jazz Band

sparkled every time they played. Hard work and dedication is what made this happen.

Ensemble Glitters

Some of the finest singing voices at Southeast were members of this year's Ensemble. Representing the school at many functions throughout the year, the Ensemble was a glittering example of the talent to be found at Southeast.

Performances were given here, as well as at local elementary schools. Their travel schedule also included a stop at the Guilford County school's future program.

The Ensemble sang a variety of music, ranging from Broadway Musicals to religious songs. Audiences loved their renditions of "There's Nothing Like A Dame" and "Hallelulah Chorus."

Many contributions were made; and the talent and hard work put forth by the Ensemble helped to make the 1984-85 school year an entertaining success.

Choral Department Again Sounds CLASSical

Southeast has a long tradition of having great songsters. This year was not one to break with that tradition. As usual, the choral classes were divided into three groups: The Treble Chorus, Men's Glee Club, and the Choir. Under the direction of Judy Thompson, the students worked on all music fundamentals and, most importantly, they came to appreciate music and each other. Mrs. Thompson took the choral students, some with limited training, and by the end of the year had them sounding like harmonious musical groups.

The choral groups entertained the school during the course of the year with their fall, Christmas, and spring concerts. Performing at the Junior High and the local elementary schools, the choral groups left impressions of what high school activities are about. All of the dedication and hard work of the chorus students paid off at these concerts when they heard the enthusiastic applause from their audiences.

The Choir and Ensemble point the way as they perform a rousing rendition of the "Gospel Train".

CLASSical

As a fund-raising project the choral classes sponsored, and performed in, the annual Variety Show. The money collected from the show was used to defray the cost of the numerous trips that the groups took throughout the year.

Choral music classes are an important part of Southeast's cultural arts program. The students might not have as much homework as they do in other classes, but the effort put into their performances is just as real as the effort put into an academic subject. Without choral music students, Southeast would lose part of the great tradition of educational opportunities upon which it was founded.

Special Events and Awards

When Your Plans Come Together

DAR AWARD

Kim Shoffner received the annual DAR Award for her outstanding citizenship, loyalty, and leadership.

MARSHALS

HISTORY CLUB TEACHER OF THE YEAR AWARD

This year the History Club decided to present a Teacher of the Year Award to a deserving teacher. Club members gather around their president Seth Hinshaw as he presents the award to Mr. Harold Causey.

Mrs. Bowman Says Good-Bye

Betty Bowman retires this year after 30 years of dedicated teaching. Mrs. Bowman grew up in the Alamance Community and attended its public school for 12 years. She graduated from UNC-G and began her career at Rankin H.S. Mrs. Bowman taught at Liberty H.S. before coming to Southeast 19 years ago. Betty says she "looks forward to traveling the world with her husband, beginning with Alaska." The entire Southeast community will miss her.

While touring Spain last summer, Mrs. Loftin walked the streets of Mijas looking for gifts, souvenirs, and special bargains.

In late October, the Drafting Club prepared for their holiday project. However, Mr. Comito, is it really Halloween or just too many years of teaching?

Even though the memories may be slowly fading, Madames Dunn, Smith, Benke, and Harrington still remember their years of cheerleaders and homecoming pep rallies.

Mike Howard finds a seat and anxiously waits for the Homecoming pep rally to begin.

Safe with the red hall pass, Annisa Riddle steals Debroah Duvall out of crafts class.

To someone just passing by, Southeast might have looked like an empty brick building, but inside the walls were people of particular importance. The building was filled with Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, teachers, and faculty that worked together in order to make Southeast not just a building, but a school. It wasn't just the athletes, teachers, and the honor students, but it was all the Falcons together making Southeast the best. Although classes and athletic events were important, it was the people that made our school superior.

Andrew Greeson takes advantage of the third quarter band break to talk to Billy Lewis.

During sixth period, Delita Reed and Wanda Evans are caught goofing off in the halls.

Kelly Boyles shows her cheerleading spirit by wearing her sunglasses on "Shades Day".

Birdmen Exposed

Over the past two years, not many people have known the person who was in the Falcon mascot suit until now. James Landreth (left) and Kurt Cagle (right) alternated at the position for the past two years. Kurt said that the best thing about it was, "It's a good way to meet cheerleaders and other people, and you can act crazy without embarrassing yourself." James' reasons for putting the suit on were much the same. Being the mascot gave both guys the chance to entertain the crowd and be the center of attention.

On the Job Training

When she was in the eighth grade, Nina McLachlan's father, who was coaching a football team, used to get her to tell his injured players what was wrong with them. Ever since, Nina has wanted to become certified by N.A.T.A. as a professional trainer. For two years Nina has served as a student trainer for the Southeast varsity and junior varsity football teams. Nina has spent many hours preparing players for practice and games. A few of her tasks were: wrapping wrists and knees, taping ankles and fingers, motivating players, and rehabilitating. Rehabilitation included organizing the use of the whirlpool and taking individual progress checks with each of the players. Nina's concern for the players continued on and off the field as she visited the injured, who were in the hospital, and gave calls of encouragement to those homebound. It is clear to see that Nina was a constant stabilizing influence to our teams. Due to her hard work, caring, and dedication, she has earned the respect of all the players and coaches.

Keeping the team healthy is Nina's main job. Here, she prepares an ice bag for a sprained ankle.

When number thirty-two, Scott Newton, injured his foot, Nina was prepared to rush to his rescue.

Many times during a game, Nina has to go to the "Black Box" for medical supplies.

Looking for the Right Place to Hide

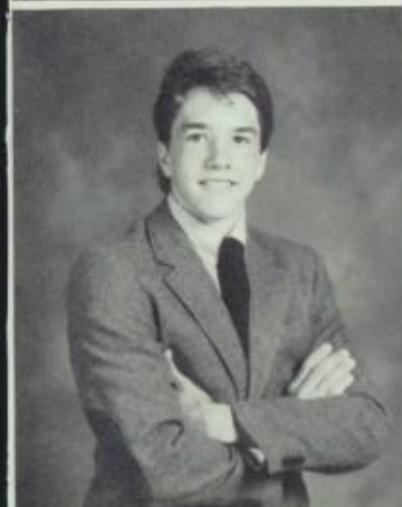

Where should one go after high school? That's a big question. First, there is the decision on whether or not to go to college. Even though there is another question to be answered and that is, "Which college is the right one?" Many majors are offered at different colleges, but the right colleges have to be found according to the student's career plans. Applications must be mailed to several schools which then allows the student to "pick and choose" the college he would like to attend. All these big decisions make it hard to find "the right place to hide."

Several seniors thumb through college catalogues in search of a school that fits their personality, budget, and career plans.

Greensboro T Rocks

Throughout the year, one of the major attractions for seniors was rock concerts at the Coliseum. Some people were so crazy about them that they camped out over night in order to get a front-row seat. Some of the major groups to hit Greensboro were: Rod Stewart, Ratt, Bruce "The Boss" Springsteen, Sheila E., and Prince. When tickets went on sale for the Springsteen concert, they were sold out for both concerts in one day. Prince also had capacity crowds for his "Purple Rain" concerts. These shows were also popular for other reasons besides the music. They allowed teenagers to get together, to relieve pressure, and to get away from the daily routines of school life.

Leisure Living

Finally, the end of the year is here, and it is time for summer vacation. Everyone leaves the school with plans for their break. Some people may go to France, England, or Spain with a club; and others might go to Florida, California, or Texas. But, probably the most popular trip is graduation week at Myrtle Beach where students from all over go to celebrate their survival of the past year and the moving on to something new.

HIGH-PRICED ADVENTURE

Throughout the year, seniors had many expenses. In September they were hit with parking permits and Senior portraits. Whereas parking stickers were only a dollar, pictures ranged from $20 to over $100. Then, in November, graduation announcements and caps and gowns were ordered which cost anywhere from $30 to $120. At the end of the year, however, came the time when seniors were really pressed for money. The prom cost about $150, and more cash was needed for things such as A.P. Exams and the class gift. These expenses, along with the cost of dates and the upkeep of cars, helped make this year a "high-priced adventure."

Seniors examine the announcement materials.

Stylish Trends

Almost any place you go, you see buttons, weird sunglasses, or some type of paraphernalia that represents our likes and dislikes. Most of the buttons that students wear represent their favorite musicians: Duran Duran, Prince, or Pat Benatar. However, some can represent sayings or slogans like Buckwheat for President, and others can represent moods or feelings such as: I'm in a frenzy! or Myrtle Beach Daze. Even though buttons are big, they are only one part of the student garb. Another favorite fashion of Southeast students is the blue jean jacket. Almost everyone owns one and wears them until they are worn out. Jackets can be worn in different ways — with the collar up or with the sleeves rolled up, but it's not complete until you top it off with some cool shades and a nice spiked haircut. But, as the times change, so do the different fads and fashions which are so popular at Southeast.

Buttons, one of the more popular student fads at Southeast, are used to reflect one's personality.

What is a Junior?

A Junior is a person not yet qualified to be a Senior, but is over qualified for a Sophomore. He/she must accept blame undeserved because Sophomores and Seniors are generally excused. And, too, a Junior is one who works hard and has fun!

Kim Shoffner, Senior

A Junior is a person that has almost reached the end of the high school academic ladder. He/she has passed the sophomore stage. They are about to reach the ultimate stage of seniority.

Davina Shough, Senior

A Junior is always stuck in the middle of everything. We aren't the youngest, and we aren't the oldest. We are just striving to be Seniors!

Pam Deal, Junior

A Junior is a person who has not discovered his full potentials in life. However, they have not ended the search.

Marie Seawell, Senior

A Junior is a student eagerly waiting to become a senior. They are tired of being picked on and put down as underclassmen by the Seniors. Next year it will be their turn to dominate over the rest of the school as Seniors.

Jef Cox, Senior

A Junior is a person who is in the middle. You feel more adult, but not quite at the top. Your goal is to become a Senior and graduate from high school. Moving from a Junior to a Senior is a big step. I know all Juniors are ready for it.

Marie Wright, Junior

Interior Designs

At the beginning of the year all the lockers are ugly and plain, but slowly they begin transforming. By the end of the first nine weeks, most of them have completed their change. Cards, posters, and pictures; they're all in there, but the main thing is that they look good. Everyone has their own style. However, most decide to use pictures of gorgeous guys and girls, or their favorite musical groups. Some have the more conservative look. Either way, it makes the lockers look better.

Pat Benatar, Christle Brinkley, and Pam Mantooth are parts of the decor of Darrell Coble's locker.

The Great Escape

Everyone needs to get away once in a while, including high school students. The students of Southeast often go out in groups to such places as malls, movies, concerts, and our own local convenient store.

The main hangouts Juniors went to this year were on or near High Point or Randleman Roads. Pizza Hut, McDonald's, Daryl's, and God Father's were some popular places to go eat. However, the main place Juniors went were malls. It has a wide variety of stores that appeal to students of many interests.

Another place Juniors went in groups was to concerts. Some of the most popular acts of today's music came this past year: Prince, Rod Stewart, Billy Squire, Bruce Springsteen, and Huey Lewis. However, the most popular hangout around school was our own Lil' General.

Tim White takes an afternoon break at the Lil' General to get a refreshing snack.

Wheels & Deals

Every afternoon at two fifty, senior high students make a mad dash for the bus? No! They make a mad dash for their cars. Almost every student at the senior high rides or drives to school opposed to riding the bus.

The student parking lot has a wide variety of styles of cars. There is basically three kinds of cars: the "family car," the "bomb," and the "sporty car."

The family car is very typical; brown, AM radio, and four door. The bomb; the one everyone hates to be seen in has three characteristics; the muffler is falling off, the spark plugs aren't working right and a hub-cap is missing. Last, but not least, the sports car; fast, sleek, and small.

No matter if one's car is sporty, falling apart, or your mom and dad's it beats riding the bus.

Wrapped Around Your Finger

Most high school students want some kind of memorabilia to represent their graduating class. In the spring of a student's sophomore year, they place an order for an important piece of jewelry, their class rings.

All rings display the school emblem as well as the student's year of graduation. They also have a variety of stones to choose from.

Requiring a thirty dollar deposit, students had all summer to raise money to complete paying for their rings. The long awaited rings arrived at the beginning of this school year.

The junior girls here at Southeast prefer the dinner ring over the large traditional ring.

"Old Yeller"

Hurry up Junior, or you'll miss 'Old Yeller'! Have you ever heard this? Some people say it's not all bad riding the bus. You can talk to your friends, have a paper fight, or just plain horse around. However, there will be no hanging out the windows, because it may result in the loss of a limb or even a head. But now, all kidding aside, bus drivers have a great responsibility and take time in doing their job well. After all, the training wasn't that easy.

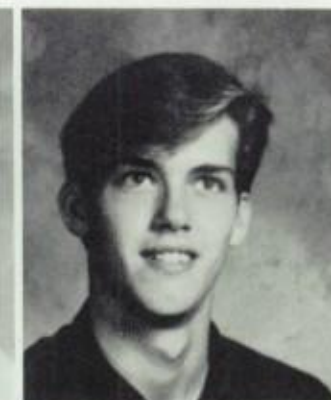

Bill Rhyne hangs out the window to straighten his mirror, before the crowd lets out.

Delita Reid quickly hops on the bus as Michelle Daniels follows to get a seat to themselves.

Heather Stevens and other students make their way to the buses after a long day at school.

Behind the Wheel

At the beginning of the sophomore year in high school most students were getting ready to turn sweet sixteen. Have you ever wondered what was sweet about the age of sixteen? Maybe it's because sixteen was the minimum age required to obtain a driver's license. This was a turning point in person's life. Earning a license was an accomplishment to be proud of. Not only was the new driver tall enough to reach the clutch and see out of the windshield, but he had a mind capable of handling lethal machinery.

Managing With Cheer

This year the cheerleading squad had a manager, Teresa Pugh. She was recommended by last year's cheerleaders and was chosen by advisor Ms. Bonner because of her enthusiasm. Even though she didn't perform at games and pep rallies, she was a cheerleader in the truest sense of the word. Her job carried many responsibilities. She ensured communication among the cheerleaders and did the advertising for the games. Teresa also attended all the games and helped with the bookkeeping. With two separate football and basketball cheerleading squads, a good helper was needed. Teresa Pugh was just that person. She had enough Falcon spirit to Manage With Cheer.

There were many clubs and organizations at Southeast. These clubs gave students a chance to take a break every first and third Friday from their regular routines. Students had something to look forward to at the end of each week. Clubs not only provided in-school participation, but they also planned off-campus and week-end activities. Of the twenty-nine clubs, some were service clubs, some were directly related to class subjects, and a few were just for fun. Clubs gave students the opportunity to use their "Classic Inspirations" to find ways to better their school and community. Goals were set and reached through hard work and determination. Members gained a sense of belonging and a feeling of pride that comes from working together for a single purpose.

Dressed for the occasion, the Civinettes have a Halloween party for the children at Cone Hospital.

Prideful Dedication

Southeast's clubs have performed many services throughout the years, both for the school and the community. These clubs have always enabled students to participate in group activities and to take an active part in school life. This year was no exception.

During the first and third Fridays of every month, club members met, made plans, and discussed activities. These club members also volunteered their time and energy after school to achieve their goals.

The Brush & Palette is one of the fine arts clubs. One of their activities included an alumni show where former art club members returned and exhibited their work to the school. They also sponsored the annual art contest between the three elementary schools: Alamance, Pleasant Garden, and Nathaniel Green.

The Busdriver's Club is concerned with promoting vehicle maintenance and bus route safety. The club also attempts to encourage interest and pride in driving a bus.

The Carpentry Club is one of Southeast's service clubs. It tries to reinforce the carpentry skills developed during class.

The Chess Club is one of Southeast's more intellectual organizations. The mem-

Last year Southeast, for the first time, won the prestigious Wachovia Cup, an honor presented to the Triad 3-A Conference school with the best combined record in all sports. However, with so many outstanding senior athletes having graduated, the returning players, their coaches, and the student body knew that a real effort would have to be made to win the cup again. With this in mind our athletes did not end their school day at 2:50, but stayed long into the afternoon and night and endured strenuous conditioning work-outs, practices, and skull sessions. As the year progressed everyone could see the exciting enthusiasm that engulfed the entire Falcon community as each team began its season. Many of our teams had excellent records, while others didn't quite live up to expectation. However, all teams had athletes who had outstanding individual performances and great team spirit.

FALL CHEERLEADERS

"Girls Just Wanna Have Fun"

Everyone knows the girls with the bright orange uniforms — the ones that smile all the time and scream their lungs out at games. They're the same ones who sell lollipops at homecoming and make pyramids on the gym floor during pep rallies. They are the cheerleaders. Everyone knows that all they do is yell a little bit, wear short skirts, and just have fun . . . right?!? Wrong. Few people realize how demanding cheerleading actually is. A cheerleader's duties never end; they range from doing such things as making posters and banners for sports events to decorating the tablecloth for the football players' pre-game meals. (continued)

Both sets of cheerleaders practiced several days a week and devoted most of their time after school either practicing or at games. Perhaps advisor Marcey Ruth Katterman summed up the cheerleading "experience" when she said, "Cheering isn't all the glitter and glamour that people make it out to be — it's a sport like any other sport." Cheerleading does require hard work and dedication, but when everyone works together and is enthusiastic about their place on the squad, cheering can be enjoyable, and yes, it can even be FUN!

VARSITY FOOTBALL

U P S & D A S E A S O N O F N S

With the band blaring, the Cheerleaders cheering, the Coaches coaching, and the fans screaming, the varsity football team played to an even 5-5 season. After losing eighteen seniors to graduation, most of them starters, the team lacked experienced players and this year became a rebuilding season. With only eight seniors on the squad, the young Falcons opened the season with two disappointing losses. The season started badly when Southern Alamance returned the opening kick-off for a touchdown. In this game, however, junior running back Scott Kemp scored two touchdowns which started him on his way to becoming the team's leading rusher with just under 800 yards. In the following game Southeast's offense was nowhere to be found as the Falcons were shut out by Southern. Momentum then began to swing to Southeast as the Falcons won the next four games beating Eastern (Kemp scored 3 touchdowns

Southeast then had an unexpected rash of turnovers and was shut out on the next two successive Fridays by Western and Reidsville. The Falcons took on Rockingham County for their Homecoming game and were victorious as Cloer scored twice on a 10-yard run and a 32-yard pass from Sanders while Schall had three interceptions, kicked a 5-yard field goal, and kicked 2 P.A.T.'s to give him a season's total of eight. Even though Cloer scored on a 20-yard reverse and Jamie Jolly caught a touchdown pass from Sanders, Southeast dropped its final game to Ragsdale and closed the season with an even record.

Post season honors went to several members of this year's team. Scott Kemp and Allan Lee were selected to the All-Conference and All-Guilford teams while Mark Cavanaugh and Scott Black were All-Conference Honorable Mention. The entire team and coaching staff represented their school with courage and distinction. Yet, after all the long hours of practice and preparation, the ten-game schedule proved to be just a series of UPS & DOWNS.

GOING THE DISTANCE

The 1984 Cross Country Team had a remarkable season once again. The boy's team, under the pseudonym of the "Iron Men," became the first Triad 3-A team to ever qualify for the state meet. Their record was 9-1, with the only loss they suffered being a controversial one-point loss to Western. The girl's team did almost as well as their male counterparts — their record was 8-2. Heather Stephens was the first Southeast girl ever to qualify for the state meet. All-Conference runners chosen from both teams are as follows: Mark Janas, Kevin Knight, Mike Heim, Jon Harris, Tay Filer, Eric Burton, Heather Stephens, and Margaret Bass. All of their hard work and dedication during those hot summer months definitely paid off as our Falcons soared to glory once more.

NET-WORKING

Hard work, a lot of persistence, and a ton of talent were just a few of the ingredients which were characteristic of the 1984 Varsity Volleyball team. The girls started early in the year with long afternoon practices striving to perfect their skills and strategic planning for a very competitive season. However, the team just couldn't seem to make their athletic ability work for them. They played double headers every game which could have contributed to their less than spectacular season. Their final record was 10-8. Joy Patton, one of the key seniors on the team, was named All-Conference. Kelly Daniels, Wendy Royal, and Cindy Richmond were the other outstanding seniors on the team. Coach Kathy Ferguson pushed her girls to practice and work hard. She gave them enthusiastic support and tried to make them see that as long as you did your best no one could ask for more.

Cindy Richmond knows that style and form are important as she concentrates on her next point-scoring serve.

Steppin' Up

This year didn't get off to a very good start as the guys' basketball team lost their first six games. Their luck stayed with them throughout the season when they lost many one-point games. Many players on this year's team felt that the team as a whole didn't have enough experience working together to win as a unit. Jeff Martin won the most points for Southeast, and he was named All-Conference as well. Chris Skabo received an All-Conference honorable mention. Another "big" asset was Clay Howard who was the team's leading rebounder and the leading blocker in the conference. With an 8-16 record, the last year of 3-A wasn't what everyone had hoped for, but there is always next year and a wide-open 4-A conference.

"Hey! Gimme a break! Come on ref, all kidding aside now. My guy never touched him!"

VARSITY GIRLS' BASKETBALL

A Tough

ACT TO FOLLOW

Second place in the district tournament was certainly just that — a tough act to follow — and after most of the starting five graduated last year, no one expected the 1984-85 girls' basketball team to win a game. No one, that is, except Coach Jim Clontz. Coach Clontz always had confidence in his girls, and he saw them through to a surprising 13-10 season.

Knowing they can't score without the ball, the varsity girls set up a tough defense on an in-bounds play.

Leading the team in points and rebounds was Joy Patton, who also received an All-Conference honorable mention. Ginger Ritchie, an aspiring junior, was named All-Conference. In spite of a four-game losing streak during the inclement weather, the varsity girls maintained their poise and followed through to a surprising — and victorious — season.

WRESTLING

Blood, Sweat, and Tears

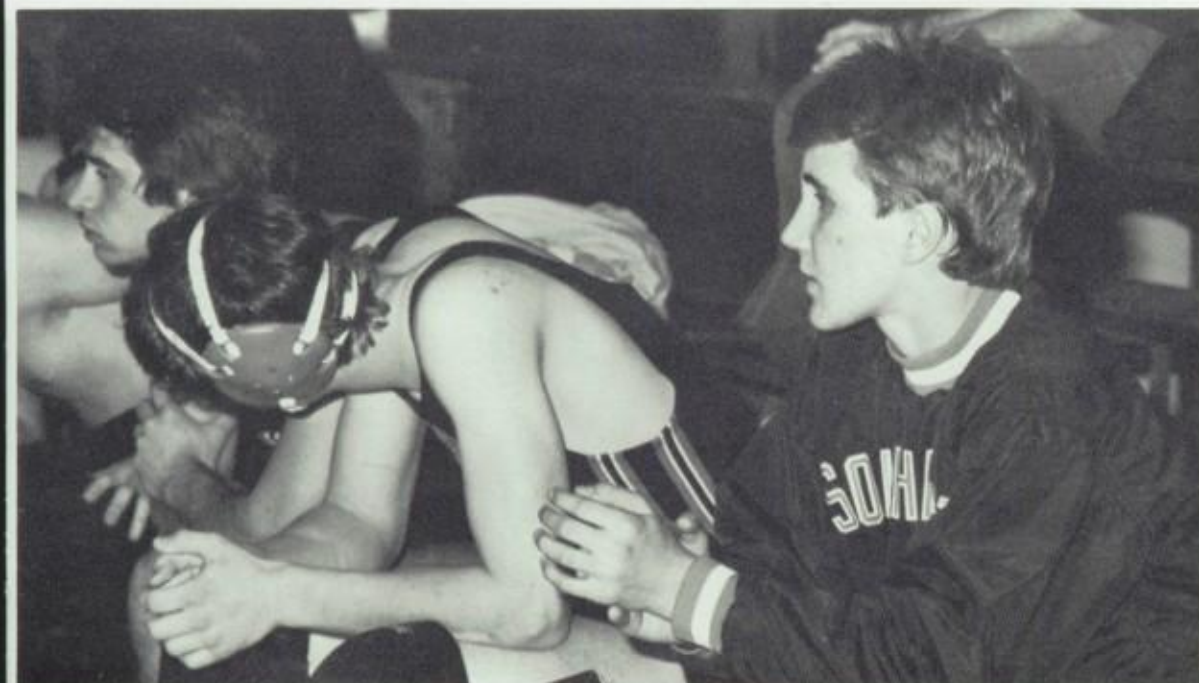

Blood from bloody noses; sweat from strenuous physical activity, and tears, well . . . This year the wrestling team had a disappointing turnout — only 22 guys tried out and only 15 wrestlers remained at the end of the season. This resulted in a losing season; 0-9 in conference play and a 1-9 over-all record. There were some highlights to this wrestling year, however. Four wrestlers (the most ever) qualified for the sectionals. They were Bret Kelley (11-11), Ken Curtis (9-7), Brian Welker (10-7-1) and Daryl Artis (16-6), who was also named All-Conference. Many matches were lost just because we had to forfeit one-third of the weight categories. Coach Callahan summed up the season when he said, "With the lack of participants and experience it is very hard to compete."

One of the more experienced wrestlers, Brian Welker maneuvers himself into a more advantageous position.

Last year the track teams competed at a distinct disadvantage. All regular season meets were held at the opponent's track after Southeast's track had been declared unsafe. Even with all meets away from home, the boys' team finished with a respectable 5-4 record which left them 5th in the conference. Chris Dryman won the 100 meter dash at the conference meet and also set the meet record in the 200 meter dash with a time of 22.24 seconds. John Erickson won the mile at the conference meet and was state champion in the two-mile with a 9:22. A very young girls' team finished 7th in the conference with a disappointing 3-6 record. However, at the conference meet, Dixie Starr was 7th in the mile and Tracey Curtis was 7th in the long jump. With a new paved track, this year's team won't have to be at Home-Away From Home.

VARSITY BASEBALL

From a Rough Stone to a

Diamond

Three years ago, 7 sophomores were rookies on the varsity baseball team. It was Kevin Callahan's first year as head coach, and he led his team to a victorious 15-4 season. The next year held an excellent record as well — 13 wins and 7 losses. After 7 games, however, the 1983-84 baseball season did not seem to follow this winning pattern. At the conclusion of the seventh game, the Falcon's record stood at 1-6. A team meeting was held, and this proved to be the miraculous turning point in the team's performance. Coach Callahan believes that "the maturity of the seven seniors carried our team through to a winning season." The Falcons went on to win the next 12 out of 12 games and qualified for the first round of the state playoffs where they were defeated in a tight game. Outstanding performance over the year came from 3-time All-Conference Player and Player of the Year 1984, Paul Yodis; 2-time All-Conference-Player and the two year leader in RBI's and home runs, Michael Byers; Forrest Brothers; Mike Craven; Scott Furr; and Danny May. Due to the teamwork and enthusiasm of the entire team, the falcons had an excellent season.

For many, playing softball was the

Last Hurrah

The 1984 girls' softball season was a very special and sentimental one. Six of the key players, Ann Byrd, Wendy Freeman, Annie Hatchett, Sandra McClintock, Lori Phillips, and Kathleen Tompkins, were graduating seniors who were also star players on other varsity teams. Led by these seniors along with Coach Kathy Ferguson, the team managed an 8-9 conference record and an 8-10 overall record. Even though the record didn't show a winning season, the team found success in the fact that they always gave the very best they were capable of. Coach Ferguson was a very supportive and enthusiastic coach throughout the year, and at the season's close, Ann Byrd and Kathleen Tompkins were named All-Conference players. Congratulations to the entire softball team, though, because, after all, "It doesn't matter whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game."

While waiting to bat, Mitzi Fields, Joy Patton, Ann Byrd, and Kathleen Tompkins have a few laughs to ease the tension of the game.

Anna Pearman tags home to score another run in the rout of Ragsdale.

Great From Tee to Green

This year the golf team finished third in their conference of ten teams, which matched their record from last year. Most of the players were very experienced, and several of them first became interested in the sport after getting involved in the Greater Greensboro Open. Even though all of the golfers contributed a great deal to the team, the Outstanding Player of the Year Award went to Mike Sorge. Mike, along with Don Filer, was also selected All-Conference. Coach John McCaskill believes that "the only possible areas of improvement were in the team's putting and chipping, but all in all they had an excellent season."

ddie Patton has to stand in a trap to let the line on this long putt from the fringe.

With his eyes on the target, Philip Young watches his short chip shot, which he hopes will stop close to the hole.

One of the team's most accurate drivers, Mike Sorge takes out his metal wood and "tees it up."

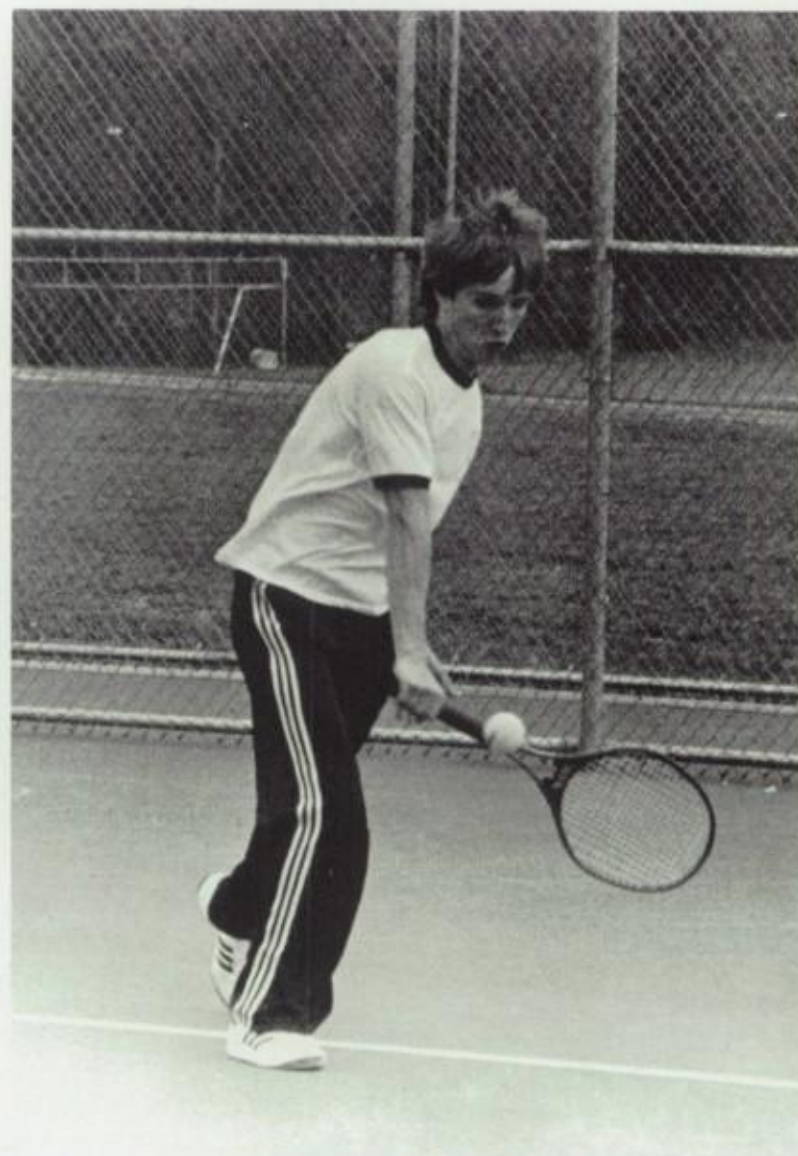

Jiff Kimel, coiled at the top of his backswing, is set to send a seven-iron flying toward the flag.

BOYS' TENNIS

At Your Service

For the fourth consecutive year, the Boys' Tennis Team remained undefeated in their conference. They had an excellent season even without one of their star players, Mike Corthum. Mike injured his back and was unable to play for the entire season. Jeff Rock, the top player on the tennis ladder, had a fabulous year and later won at the sectionals in Greensboro. He was rated among the top four players in the men's singles. He later advanced to the regionals where he was defeated in a close match. The next five players on the ladder were Steve Coggins, David McLachlan, Jamie Edmondson, Kevin Neal, and Mike McAfee, although everyone on the ladder below them did get to play. The team played six non-conference matches early in the season. They lost them all, but Coach Bob Phillips said that playing against such experienced teams helped his players out tremendously and made them more prepared for the upcoming conference matches.

Jamie Edmonson follows through on his powerful swing.

When using his powerful backhand, Jeff Rock has a definite advantage over his opponent.

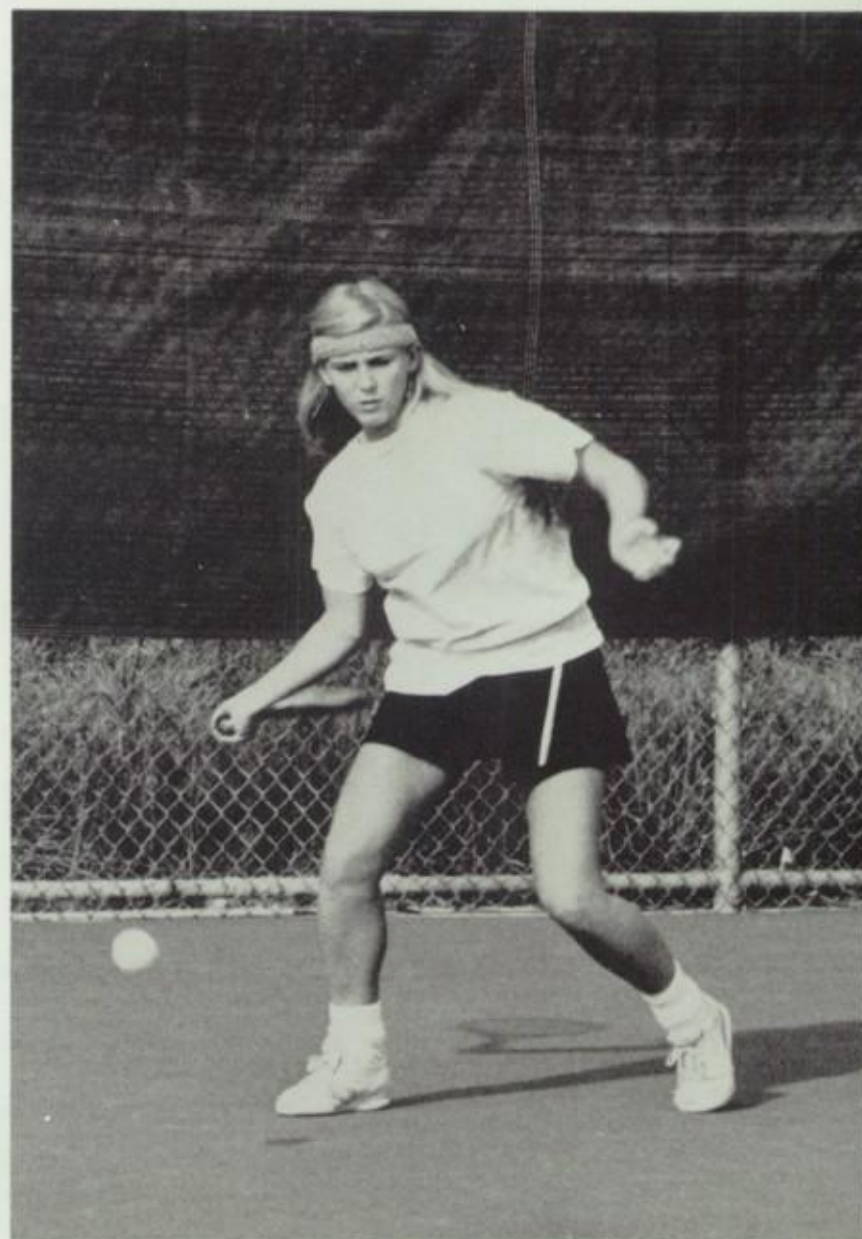

Kevin Neal rushes the net as he "spots" his opportunity to smash the oncoming volley.

GIRLS TENNIS

Masters of the Game

The 1984 girls' tennis season was no different from those of the past four years in the regard that our Falcon girls once again dominated the courts to finish victorious. However, a few changes occurred at the beginning of this season: Coach David Brown replaced former coach Bob Phillips, and for the first time in years only three seniors were on the team. Coach Brown pulled his girls through many exhausting practices on hot summer afternoons to mold this "young" group of girls into an unbeatable team. They finished the season with an excellent record, and several girls qualified for the Sectionals, with Kim Vaughan playing in the Regionals and finally the State playoffs. Valerie Pierson and Julie Potter were the other seniors, and they were also an asset to the team. The Falcons went on to win their conference, bringing a close to their amazing season.

Edwards, Stacy Bellairs, Leanne Burris, Isa Pelczar. Row 3: Leigh Aughenbaugh, Terri Rock, Kelly Woodbury, Julie Potter, Mandy Ozment.

The concentration shows on Kim Vaughan's face as she approaches the ball with her forehand slice.

Using all her strength, Stacy Bellairs fires a serve to her opponent from Ragsdale.

After rushing to the net, Terri Rock looks to the sky as she gets in position to smash an incoming lob.

JV FOOTBALL

Better Than Ever

This year's Junior Varsity Football Team was labeled "the best ever" here at Southeast. They scored 191 points and had 3 shut-outs. Coaches Faulkner, Trahan, and Leadbetter feel that all of the credit should go to the young men for their tremendous effort. All of their dedication and hard work paid off. Their conference record was 6-3, and the overall record stood at 7-3. Coach Leadbetter feels that their best game was against Reidsville, but the one in which they scored the most points was the blowout against Western. Outstanding players on the team were offensive running backs Michael Ward and Bobby Boone, offensive linemen Craig King and Allen Venable, and on defense Steven Beal, Huey Clapp, Chris Glover and Kevin Alley.

The J.V. Cheerleaders, with fingers crossed, anxiously await the outcome of the next play.

New and Improved

The J.V. Girls' Volleyball Team managed a 2-7 record this year. Coach Kathy Ferguson believes, however, that this record does not accurately reflect her team's performance. Most of the girls on this year's team played on the junior high volleyball team which never won a game. Coach Ferguson feels that the improvement this year came from more experience, teamwork, and the help of a few newcomers, especially Shea Christopher and Lynn Doss. Two other outstanding players were Susan Boucher and Von Shepard. All in all, the team worked well together and finished with a much better record than the previous years.

J.V. BASKETBALL

So Close So Often . . .

With a high level of drive and the positive encouragement offered by Coach Dee Dee Hartnett, the Girls' Junior Varsity Basketball Team was able to come back from a slow beginning. The young girls played hard and displayed good potential. When the season closed, the Lady Falcons closed their scorebook with a respectable record of 9-9.

the way for the Boys' Junior Varsity Basketball Team. However, they were unable to use this spark to fire themselves up and meet the season head on. They played with persistence, but the scoreboard seldom reflected their tireless efforts. They finished the season with a disappointing record of 0-18.

Learning to Play . . .

Coach David Brown led his J.V. Baseball team to a victorious season this year: 11 wins and 7 losses. Both games against Morehead were won as well as both games with Northeast and Southern. Our team split games with Western, Reidsville, Northeast, Rockingham, and Eastern Guilford. We were defeated both times by Ragsdale. At the close of the season, Donald Heffinger was named Most Valuable Player, and the entire team finished with a season to be proud of.

With gear in hand Bobby Boone and Jimmy Loschin make the long trek from the junior high to the high school diamond.

Steve Barrow, Chip Wilshire, Spence Ferguson, Joe Harbinson.

Several JV players come to the softball field early in order to catch the final innings of the varsity game.

... and WIN

Coach Hank Corbett had a very young team to work with last spring. Even though many of his players were relatively inexperienced, they were all hard workers and very enthusiastic about the game of softball. Coach Corbett was the softball coach purely on a volunteer basis, and he did a commendable job molding his "rookies" into experienced players. They managed ten wins and nine losses throughout the season. Outstanding players were Dawn Austin, Tammy Blue and Laura Aydelette, as well as Kathy Oakley, who received the Most Valuable Player Award.

J.V. CHEERLEADERS

SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW . . .

In many ways cheerleading this year was the same as it has been for the past several years; however, the 1984-85 season held some important changes for the new cheerleaders. Instead of having one squad with twelve cheerleaders, two separate squads were formed — one for basketball and one for football — with twenty different girls being able to cheer. This new policy was very advantageous for the girls that cheered because they were also able to play sports. Along with cheerleading advisor Angie Bonner, there was; however, one girl who was a very vital and dedicated part for both squads: Teresa Pugh. Teresa was the J.V. cheerleading manager this year and her hard work and enthusiastic devotion helped to pull everyone through to a fantastic season. Perhaps next year more changes will occur, but this year was a great success.

With school photographer Mr. Driscoll active in the foreground, the J.V. cheerleaders huddle before the game.

A lot of concentration and poise are required to form a sturdy and well-balanced "tower of spirit."

During a momentary lull in the action, the girls take a breather and discuss their next cheer.

Classic Inspirations

From that hot morning in August when it all began, to a scorching afternoon in May when things started to come to an end, our year at Southeast was constantly marked by Classic Inspirations. Each of us, in some way, left our mark with each step we took down the halls. Fortunately, the steps were usually easy and times were good, but it was those days when things weren't so wonderful and we weren't sure which way to walk, that the guidance and influence of a caring teacher or the strong hand of a true friend carried us over the bad times and led us to our destination.

Around every corner we turned and in each classroom we sat, the Classic Inspirations seemed to surround us. We felt it with great pride as the Cross Country team ran its way to a Conference Championship. While our other sports teams didn't win any championships, 15 Falcon athletes came out on top, giving their personal best, and were named All-Conference Players. We saw it in the seven band members who worked extra hard and made All-State Band. It was the Annual Staff photographer and his Junior classmate who won prestigious Gold Key Awards for their outstanding photography and art work. It was the three inspiring young actresses who each won outstanding acting awards at Regional and State competitions, and the dedicated English teacher who put her life in overdrive and did some crazy things to obtain her Masters degree.

It is obvious that we have a tendency to remember all the good times throughout the year, but that's a privilege we've earned. 1985 was a year marked by dedication, hardwork, spirit, and binding unity. It was the everyday Classic Inspirations that helped us rise above the factors of where we were, showed us how to come together as one, and taught us some valuable lessons in how to face the challenges of the future.

Western simply backs away as Varsity Basketball player, Jeff Martin, goes up for a perfect shot.

Even with a chill in the air, Classic Inspirations keep Varsity cheerleader, Kristy Wilke, smiling.

Falcons unite as one and give a huge cheer for Classic Inspirations during an afternoon pep rally.

Finishing mobiles, Stacey Fuller and Lynn Doss get a helping hand from Geometry teacher, Mrs. Beneke.

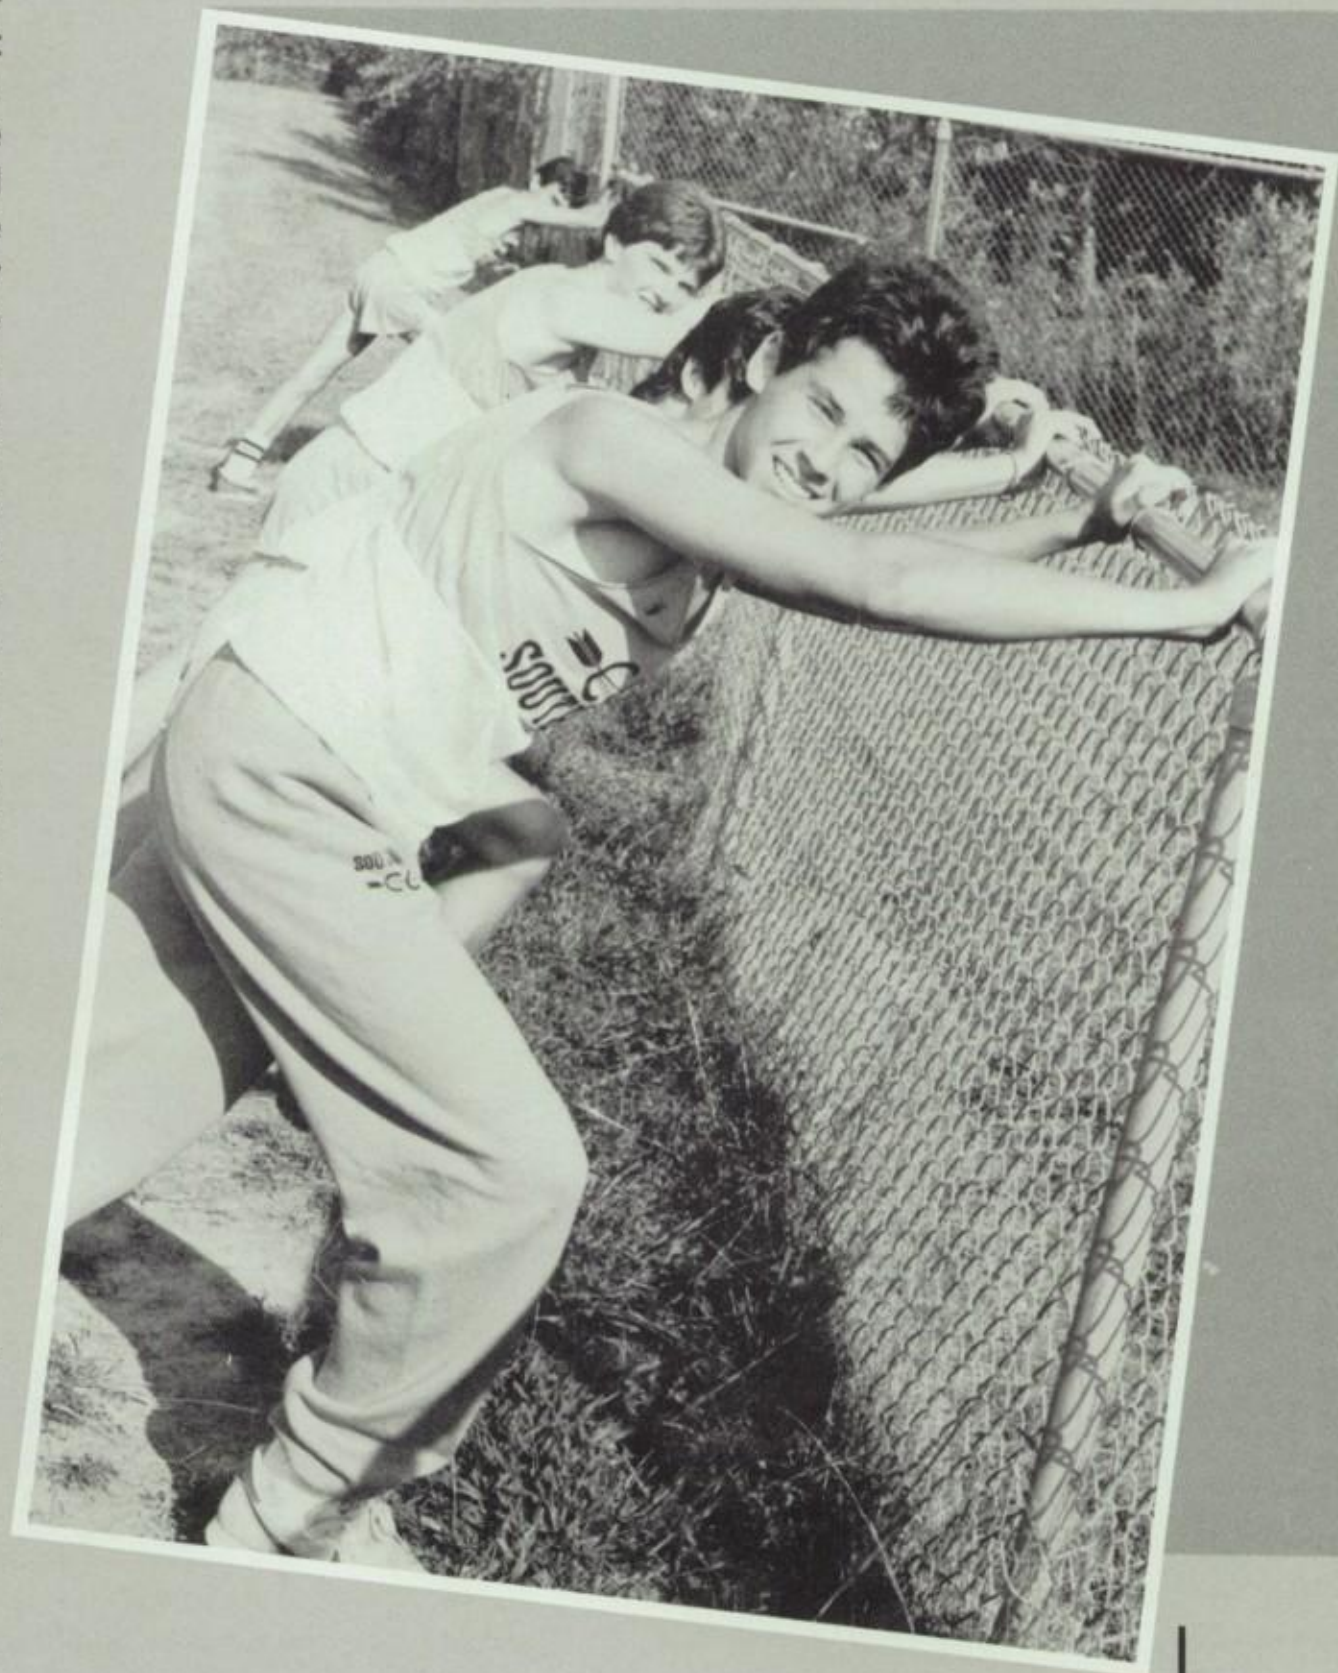

Carpentry class is the perfect place for David Scott to let his inspirations flow.

Inspirations, cont.

It has given us a feeling of gratification at having experienced some of the most valuable moments in our lives. We've had a look at "life in the fast-lane." We've partied hard and strutted our stuff. We've yelled and screamed till our throats were sore as we cheered our teams to victory. It's brought us together and taught us we must learn from each other. It's given us a glimpse at love and produced a lifetime of friendships. It's brought about a feeling of respect at having been a part of a school we can easily be so proud of. When people look back on Southeast Senior High School and 1985, they'll remember the year when administration, teachers, and students gave each other a gift like never before. The gift of wisdom touched by imagination and insight carefully guided by influence. 1985 was the year Falcons gave each other Classic Inspirations.

Rick Hilliard and teammates push down the fence to make way for Classic Inspirations.

Todd,

I can't believe how well you're doing in 5th period! You totally amaze me. We've had some pretty wild times this year - maybe next year will be even wilder. Let better be! We'll have to sleep on the side of the road sometime. I hope you never forget the time I told you that you stunk - because you know I was kidding! I've told you millions of times. I have you used up all the cologne you got for Xmas yet? Shame for making me laugh so much - you're a trip.

We still need to go out in a public place sometime - I'll be an experience you'll never forget! I guess I won't see you again since you & Cary are going to Vermont. Have fun!

You're a great friend Todd. I hope you become a famous Van Halen up!

2/11/95 > try to find a better place than this road!

Todd, well this looks like goodbye. Lets cry. You have really been a great friend and just an all around cool person. I really wish that you were passing this year but I guess that's life. I hope that you do come up this summer, that would really make my life. I really hope that we stay in touch had. You're one of the best friends I have ever had. Stay cool and try to pass next year.

Your great friend
Steve Heim

I really do hope that you decide that school is more important than getting high. Myra

Todd,
I don't know you all that well, but I know your crazy! maybe Mr. will appeal to you next year! You will be Juniors! You'll had better take our place and be just as wild, if not worse! Party Hard over the summer, But don't kill yourself!

PS Good luck with Dornelle. Maybe I can come to your alls wedding.

I will write!!
Lookout Nashville because here I come

I feel that if you hanged around any more you'll become a better person. Yk Stay the same So I'll always remember you.

Todd,

Thank god our sophomore year is over! Now we can move on to be Juniors. This year has been great and having you in my homeroom has been a truly strange experience.

Good luck in the future!

Love Always,

Lisa
"Horny"

Todd,

Well, we made it through another year! 2 more to go! You are a sweet guy, and I'm glad we've grown closer over the years! (Goat!!) You'd better be good to Donnelle over the summer! Don't work too hard. Hope you have a terrific summer vacation, and good luck always!

YOUR FRIEND ALWAYS,
Debbie
Yaskiewicz

Todd,

Any, ya know we started off great - what happened? I really want to be friends with you but I always seem to do something totally stupid to screw it up. Maybe we can start over next year - clean slate - Thanks for being there through all of that mess with Chris. I was hoping that me and him would at least end up friends but he's got his head stuck too far up his ass to even notice me. I hope you and Donnelle stick together, you deserve nothing but the best out of life! Take care - this summer, and keep in touch!

Remember?!

Love ya,

Barbi

Todd,
Well, hasn't it been a great year? You found Donnelle & me Rick! You two are so adorable and you love each other so much! You're perfect together! Stay that way!

Todd, I'm so glad me and you became such good friends this year! You really helped me through some times when I felt like nothing was going to suit me! I was ready to give up, but you Todd, you kept me going until I found Rick - I thank you so much for your friendship - it means a LOT! You are really a true brother to me! I want you to always go for the best because you deserve it! You always have something good to say - the right thing!! Let's always remain good friends - 'cause you're the best! Friends always! Love ya! Lori

Todd,

I'm so glad we've been able to remain such good friends these past few years. Our friendship has meant so much to me - you've always been there to cheer me up & listen to me and I'll never be able to thank you. We had a great summer and I'm so sorry we won't be able to have another one together this year. But you have to promise to come visit me or at least write to me in good ol' Alabama. I'll miss you!!!! Stay out of trouble!

Love Ya Always,

Amy

Love ya Always

Nettie M.

P.S. I hope you & Donnelle will last a while - she's great for you!

So a very special guy, I'll always love & remember in a very special way. You, Kelli, Jay, & I had some pretty good times this year. I hope they won't be the last! Please keep in touch this summer. I'll know my #1 my address so give them! I hope you have a good summer - that you & Donnelle last 4-ever. I can see the change in you - it's for the better! But please don't change much - o.k.? Will have fun this summer - but not too much! I'll never forget my best friend in the world!! Don't forget me!! Stay out of trouble & take care!!

P.S. Just don't let Jimmy get my number!! Please!!

Todd,

I'm so glad Donnelle met you,
cause then I met you - lucky you!!
~~oops!~~ you're really a sweet guy - I just wish they were all like you!! I'm glad we became friends because at the beginning I really started to wonder. I thought you were an asshole - boy was I wrong!!
I hope you and Donnelle stay together forever because then I'll know you forever and that sounds great to me!! I have to be careful what I write, cause I don't want anyone getting the wrong idea!! I guess I'll miss you over the summer because I won't get to pick on you over the summer like I do everyday at school. If you're ever down at Donnelle's both of ya'll come on over!! I'm really gonna miss you!! Being you'll be a Junior next year - try not to get too conceited over the summer.
Even though I'm a Senior I guess I can still talk to you - just picking - you know I will.
Well, I'm sort of out of room!! See ya next year!!
Take Care!! I try to ^{Behave} myself! I Love you,
"Mom"!!!

Todd,

Well this year is finally over. And we have made it through another year of this yuk school. There is only 2 more. It's been so nice and fun knowing you for the past 2-3 years. You are such a funny, sweet and cute guy. Stay the same. It's too bad that we didn't have any classes together besides homeroom. Maybe next year. Well have a fun summer and come by and see me sometime.

Friends

Always,

Patricia

To a cool dude that has a savy job. Have fun raising hell this summer. Don't let those assholes at work give you too much shit. See ya next year.

Todd,
 you have a trip in you make a month good to try to have a summer out of you again

Todd,
 Hey cool we've made it through another long year. Only two more to go. Then it's party hardy.
 What I'm saying is we're gonna raise hell the rest of our lives. Listen man you are the coolest of the cool the greatest friend a person could have. Party hardy, raise hell (and all that good shit) this summer. See ya around
